

Analytics: Save Pivot Tables with nodes expanded

With this release, you can expand nodes in a pivot table and save them for future/further use, so that you can see the underlying data in the report/export at any time directly.

This configuration is saved permanently when you save the analysis as "My analysis" or as a report element. If you then export the analyses and reports saved in this way, pivot tables with the extended nodes are displayed.

Please be aware that the pivot table is displayed fully collapsed after one of these changes:

- A dimension is removed, changed, or rearranged.
- The user switches to the pivot list.
- The extended node is saved position-based, not value-based. So if you expand the top third node, it will be expanded independently from its value.
